London St. M. Inspector Bonfield has just been seen at 3 P. M.—The southwestern portion of the city this afternoon was the scene of another riot. Toward noon a crowd of An archists and their friends assembled at the corner of Eighteenth and Morgan streets for the purpose of holding a meeting. It is also said they intended to renew the attack on the McCormick reaper works. The police, who had been notified of the affair, kept a close watch upon the proceedings.

"Workingmen, the hated police yesterday murdered four of your brothers, and then wounded perhaps twenty-five more, at McCormick's factory. Had your brothers, who had nothing but stones to defend the base armed with good weapons. The paper further says:

System strike was ordered, when asked what effect he anticipated the method of ending the trouble would have on the Knights of Labor, said: "We were fighting for recognition, and we got it from Congress, which represents all the citizens of the United States."

The list of casualties, so far as can be learned, foots up as follows: One Socialist dead, two officers dead, four other officers who may not survive till morning, and thirty more police who have wounds, many of the most serious character. In addition to this, probably fifty people, nearly all members of the Socialists' crowd, or citizens of the vicinity were shot or otherwise hurt. So great is the panic and necessity of caring for the wounded that it may be days before the full extent of the disaster is made known. THE MAYOR SPEAKS.

Mayor Harrison arrived at the station as soon as possible after the bombs had been thrown. He walked around among the wounded officers and spoke encouraging words to them. "I was," said he, "at the meeting for a while, during the time when Parsons was speaking. I went from there to the Desplaines-street station, and learning that there was no indication of trouble I went home to bed. I had bardly done so when I heard of the bomb-throwing, and came directly to the station. "What action will be taken to subdue the Socialistic element?" he was asked. "I can't say now. DEAD AND WOUNDED OFFICERS.

Before the firing had ceased the neighboring police stations were turned into temporary hospitals, and at 11 o'clock twenty policemen lay on the floor of the Desplaines-street station, all disabled, and probably half that number seriously. Others were reported to be still lying in the open square, either dead or badly wounded. A telephone message from one of the hospitals says that a wounded officer brought there has since died. Officer Joseph D. Egan died on the way to the station.

Later reports at the Desplaines-street station indicate that even more than was at first estimated were wounded among the Socialists. The scenes at the station are heartrending. In one large room lie some fifty officers, with doctors dressing their wounds. MR. GLADSTONE'S TEN POINTS.

Mr. Gladstone's "manifesto" is what in the United States we would call a party address. In brief, it is a statement of his it much good and no harm, and there are cause and an appeal for support. First, some new legislation for the settlement of buke, can say as much. the troublous issues regarding Ireland must be had. Second, that a broader recognition of the demand of the Irish people for the privilege of legislating on local affairs is necessary. Third, that the Government has advanced a scheme for the betterment of the people, and that it is opposed without any substitute for it being offered. Fourth, that he who assaults a governmental remedy for confessed ills ought to offer something better in its stead, and the future and wait for a period of national Gladstone says, "Give now, give freely pers of California as rowdy journals. when we can," and not give simply " that we can no longer withhold." Ninth, it is no objection that Scotland and Wales may ask for home rule. Their right involved is not different from that of the Irish, but the circumstances are different. The standard of good government in Scotland and Wales will be determined by public opinion in these countries. Tenth, those now in opposition to the Government

DANGEROUS CRITICISM.

The Carson Appeal, referring to the riparian rights decision of the Supreme Court of this State, speaks disparagingly of that tribunal, and declares that our peoranking fairly with those of other States. It will be a sorry day indeed when our politically or otherwise. We select our Judges because of their ability and honesty. No one will have the hardihood to pledge a candidate for the bench to decide this way or that as a reward for preferment. When that issue enters into the choice of magistrates, Courts will cease to character, and strike at the root and fountion of the ballot-box. We have noticed grounds for them, even if they were only in some of our home papers expressions ghostly. similar to those we quote from the Appeal, and with regret. They do not testify to $5,000.

has been gain, says Martin Irons: "We have gained recognition from Congress." But it remains to be seen how much of real gain that is. The so-called arbitration Congress proposes is a farce. How much better it would have been if the workers had sought arbitration first. The rights of labor are too broad and command too much of human sympathy to be destroyed by strikes, violence and intimidation. And the workers of the country will realize this soon, and seek the better way through orderly organization, wise counseling and manly presentation of their claims. Mr. Powderly's advice they will presently see is the best advice, and that is to avoid "the equally liked and disliked by the world of readers. There are reading people who manifest deep disgust at the very mention of "Proverbial Philosophy." Others, however, take delight in that reading. It remains that millions have read Tupper's works, and few writers of the age have had a broader clientage of readers. Even those concede that Tupper is a pure man, and ticipants, and has been pleasantly com highest order of moral teaching. LOCAL INTELLIGENCE, Executive Pardon.

Governor Stoneman yesterday issued a pardon to F. W. Raymond, who was convicted of the crime of abduction in the Superior Court of Shasta county in March, 1884, and sentenced to a term of five years' imprisonment in the State Prison at San He was charged with "taking away a female from the person having charge of her person, without his consent, for the purposes of prostitution." It has since been ascertained that the woman alleged to have been abducted was at that time a lewd person. The Board of State Prison Directors recommended that a pardon be granted, on the ground that the and afterwards withdrawn: Hon. Aaron Bell, the committing Judge, the District Attorney, foreman of the jury, the Sheriff, and a large number of prominent citizens of Shasta county, represent that a large portion of the testimony which went to convict said Raymond was false, and that facts developed since his trial show him in all probability to be innocent of the crime charged.

In the current number of the Hatter and Furrier, a paper devoted to the interests of Hat Manufacturing, there is an article on Hat Dyeing that is not uninteresting reading for

It goes on to tell that Hat Dyeing, simple as it may seem, is a delicate and altogether a wonderful process. It requires long, practical experience, for almost every piece of felt has to be treated in a somewhat different manner. The key to success, however, is in having the original material perfectly CLEAN, or in time the dirt and oil will come to the surface, giving the Hat, after it had been worn in the sun a few times a "mottled" or "cloudy" look. This is why so many hats which look well when new, soon assume a rusty hue.

In a word, Hat Dyeing is an art which in all its details requires time, care and cleanliness—things which many manufacturers entirely overlook in their greed for greater profits. The only protection which the consumer has against such goods is in buying only reliable makes. But which are reliable and which are not? We admit the question is somewhat perplexing, and in a large measure the consumer must depend upon the judgment of the retail dealer. He knows all about the various makes, and if he is a conscientious dealer and cares for the future of his trade, will keep only reliable brands.

Let then those who would have the best satisfaction in their Hat wear select their Hatter aright!
